Crime Universities
Europe's Kaleidoscope
Canada Mutton, Why?
Cheerful Store News

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Some complain that too much wine and money are spent at universities to educate profes-

There are some American universities that do their work of teaching most thoroughly; they are the universities of crime, commonly called prisons and penitentiaries.

District Judge Harry D. Landon of Nebraska, and his son, Frank, law student, wanted to know more about prisoners and prison life and had themselves committed for three weeks to the penitentiary at Fort Madison, Iowa.

Among their prison prisoners, they heard tales of daily crime and new criminal "jobs" planned for the future. The judge was invited to join in the jobs after they got out.

When the judge and his son entered the prison they were put in military confinement for three days, just to "start them off right," a process hardly calculated to soothe the heart of a convict and turn him toward a better life.

As you look into a prison, except everything changes from minute to minute. It is about the same with Europe, where quarrels shift around like the little specks of dust in the kaleidoscope tube. Until the other day, Belgium was the dear ally of France, and France loved Belgium. Now Belgium says
"No more alliances, and seems to be leaning toward Germany."
She even talks of building forts along the French frontier in case France should move in her direction.

In addition to being surprised, this is foolish. Forts will play no great part in the next war. "You can't shoot an airplane from a fort. If France should visit Belgium, or vice versa, the visit would be by air."

It takes a long time to realize changes. Many bought expensive horse-drawn carriages adapted to the automobile age.

On Park avenue in New York city, "fashionable" because rich people live there, you may see a well painted butchers wagon carrying the sign "Canada Mutton."

You wonder whether anything is wrong with United States mutton or whether fashionable ladies and gentlemen feel that mutton from abroad is more easily digested.

Excellent mutton is raised by United States farmers, and those that make their money in the United States should not be above spending it in the United States.

If a butcher in London or Paris pointed out his wagon the sign, "Mutton grown in the United States," his customers would tell him to go away and not come back until he had decided to sell English or French mutton.

It should be possible to determine the purity that the mutton acquired in America should be spent somewhere else.

Good news in the citizens generally, as well as for business, is supplied in this writer by Mr. John S. Burke, known to all important American merchants. There has been recently observed a great increase in the sale of household goods of all kinds: furniture, rugs, all sorts of permanent household furnishings. That is more important than any casual "retail business" sale. Every dollar spent in beautifying the home or apartment is a dollar that is spent to leave happy memories of youth on the minds of children. Happiness promotes success and a beautiful home increases happiness.

University, mentioned that there is no necessity for combining the beauty of modern life with the brutality of the brutal

Princeton football games in their thousands of thousands at home and abroad. As a result, the very best of the picked up after the next game an earlier game.

Modern youth will respond in a wise aspect if it respects the source.

Development, as the "Merry

IDEAL BETRAYAL HIT BY LANDON

and the most brutal use of the spoils system this country has ever seen.

He promised a "thorough spring house cleaning" in Washington to end this political "debacle" of the government.

Governor Landon was headed for New York city, where he will confer with John W. Davis and Alfred E. Smith, former Democratic presidential nominees, visit the Shrine of Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay and deliver his final message to the East at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Besides enunciating his position toward labor in his speech here, Landon warned again against the President's "social security" law, which takes effect January 1.

He said the burden of the act will "fall almost entirely on the workers," who will have to pay it, suggesting cost "indirectly in reduced employment, higher prices of lower wages."

Governor Landon said: "Labor has fairly won many victories in this country. The greatest triumph has been won not on the field of battle but in the stronghold of public opinion. The greatest victory of labor, in my opinion, has been in having about the general recognition of an important principle. It is that national property depends on labor's receiving an increasing share of the value of everything we produce. The truth of this principle is today accepted by the men who have as well as the men who have not. It is the foundation of increased production, higher average purchasing power and a larger measure of happiness for everyone."

Organized labor has been the natural champion of this principle. The father of the American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gompers, was one of its first sponsors. As early as 1900, he declared:

"I believe that as time goes on, the wage earners will continue to become larger and larger per dollar of the wealth produced. I have no fear as to the future of organized labor."

Peggy Anne's Nurse to Dine With Landon

Aboard Landon's special train, Oct. 28 (INS)—Governor Alfred M. Landon made one of his side-trip appointments for tonight in New York City. It was with Miss Theresa Cahill, who moved his daughter, Peggy Anne, for four years following the death of the first Mrs. Landon.

The Governor, knowing Miss Cahill was living in New York City, had one of his side-trip appointments for tonight in New York City. He expressed delight when informed the lady had accepted.

Miss Cahill has grown along with the nation. That conviction of Mr. Gompers had become the conviction of every progressive citizen of this country. The capitalist who employs labor knows that prosperity depends on the success of his enterprise. He knows that prosperity depends on the success of his enterprise. He knows that prosperity depends on the success of his enterprise.

The day when the owner of the natural champion of this principle. The father of the American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gompers, was one of its first sponsors. As early as 1900, he declared:

Right to Organize

For many years I have believed in the necessity for organization as a means of advancing the fortunes of the individual worker, raising his standard of living and giving him the position in the world to which he is entitled. It is a fact that the Supreme Court of the United States recognizes the right of organized labor, through peaceful methods, to extend organization to labor that is organized. That it recognizes the right of peaceful picketing, and generally that the law is on the side of those who as workers are to promote their own fortunes and those of their fellow workers in the same or other industries.

It is an old story that labor has the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing without interference by employers. But this many another old story, it tends to be emphasized and applied. When I am President I will see to it that Federal laws for the protection of workers are enforced.

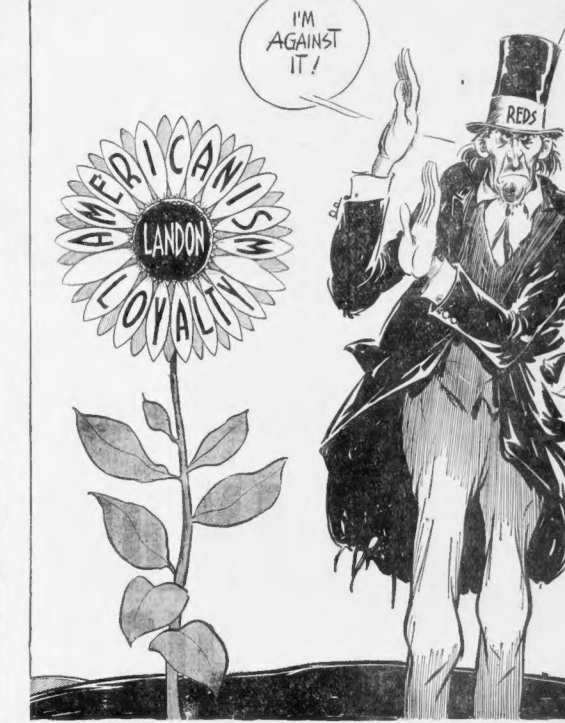

If this right of organized labor has been secured through great sacrifice in the past, it is reasonable to believe that the lesson of experience has been given us all. Today we know that progress comes through the cooperation of labor and capital, standing between labor and capital, reached through conference based on the principle of democratic bargaining.

Gompers' Genius

As Mr. Gompers said: "From the moment in which workers and employers negotiate and agree upon terms, hours, conditions, and wages, the principle of cooperative domination gives way to the principle of democratic cooperation. It is the truly democratic way."

I have been frankly exposing the dangers and the disappointments inherent in the compulsory insurance programs of the New Deal. At the same time I have been offering in its stead a practical and constructive program of real security. The present administration claims that the burden of the social security act falls mainly upon the employers.

The real facts are that they fall almost entirely on the workers. They must pay twice: once directly when the tax is deducted from their pay envelope in increasing amounts until it reaches 3 per cent. They must pay again indirectly in reduced employment, higher prices or lower wages.

These inevitably must result from the six per cent payroll taxes on their employers, who must pass on these increased costs to the public in one form or another. I have already pointed out that half of our workers, those engaged in agriculture, home work and the like, are excluded from the benefits of the act; that this is the largest tax measure in our history that younger workers are forced to bear the burden than the older workers; and that the check every pay envelope and every check of check of every man and woman covered by the act does not set up a true insurance plan that the taxes collected are not held in any savings or reserve fund as claimed. Instead they are diverted into government bonds, L. O. U.'s.

Creates Insecurity

When payments become due, they must be currently authorized by Congress and are financed. The act at best is only a promise of the government to raise money at some future time—if it can. Meanwhile, the promise of these taxes is the basis of this administration will be to meet current deficits and future extravaganzas. This is not social security. It will create a social security.

On the other hand, we Republicans have pledged ourselves to provide assistance to the needy, blind and crippled to foster the promotion of child welfare and the improvement of the public health service. Our platform proposes to encourage honest and practical programs of unemployment insurance. This position is taken to cause all past experience abroad with this type of insurance has been a bitter disappointment. Practically every plan has broken down after a few months.

ROOSEVELT ON VOTE DRIVE IN NEW YORK

Public Works Administration funds. Earlier, at Bayonne, N. J., where he left his special train, the President told a big station throng he was glad to see factories and industrial plants opening again.

"One of our hopes four years ago," he said, "was that we could bring about greater security and prosperity. That objective we have at least in part attained—and will continue to accomplish during the next four years."

LA GUARDIA AIDERS Mayor La Guardia introduced Mr. Roosevelt at Brooklyn College. The President pointed out as he laid the cornerstone of the college building that such projects "will give jobs to one alone—people and educational facilities."

Late today, following the address at Bayonne, N. J., this morning Mrs. Roosevelt, Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York and other notables were waiting when the train arrived.

President Roosevelt told his well-come back here again. I am glad to know that your factories are running again. During the last four years I have tried to achieve for the people of this country a greater security and a greater prosperity. The kind of security and the kind of prosperity that I had in mind through these four years.

"Whenever I go, I find a great hope and a greater sense of security. It is my hope that it will be continued for the next four years."

Following the brief address at Bayonne, the presidential motorcade traveled into Staten Island and thence, by ferry, to Brooklyn. Tomorrow, Mr. Roosevelt will leave for Pennsylvania and New Jersey again and touch in Delaware before heading back to New York city hammering away in a last-minute drive to boost his anticipated city majority up toward the million mark.

U. S. Free Nation

Back in 1904 even Mr. Gompers himself was accused of promising. It was simply absurd for anyone to charge that I had in mind either the desire or the will or the ability to deliver the labor vote.

"I know full well that I could not deliver the labor vote nor did I make any such promise or promise. It was simply absurd for anyone to charge that I had in mind either the desire or the will or the ability to deliver the labor vote."

Mr. Gompers spoke truly. No one can deliver the labor vote of America to any one political party. It is the duty of every citizen to deliver the labor vote of America to any one political party. No one can deliver the labor vote of America to any one political party.

Why? Because there are no classes in America. We are one nation and one people. We are a nation of individuals and of free men. As free men we may differ in our opinions on national affairs. But we are one people and we are one nation. However much we may differ, we are one people and we are one nation.

That is the true feature of our American system. Anyone who claims to be able to deliver, or strive to deliver any part of the American people to a political master is betraying the creed of America. Such a person is selling the souls of destruction for all of us. He threatens to destroy the one classless nation in a world divided by class hatred and overshadowed by the tragedy of classism.

ROUNDING UP THE TOUHY GANG By Melvin Purvis

Hoodlums' Success Fatal

By MELVIN PURVIS CHAPTER XI

Success did not make the Touhy healthy; one by one they began to vanish.

Jim was killed in a cafe shooting. Joe went to prison for murder, was released, and then himself was murdered.

John died as a result of an argument with a bad-tempered dealer who refused to handle the Touhy brands of booze. What became of Edward, I do not know; but Roger, a kinky-haired, good-looking fellow, was one of the hoodlums who held the night life around Evanston securely under control.

Tom Touhy, intemperate and grim, and veteran of two short prison terms, was the able and effective leader. He was a man of a few words, but his words were powerful. He was a man of a few words, but his words were powerful. He was a man of a few words, but his words were powerful.

He was a man of a few words, but his words were powerful. He was a man of a few words, but his words were powerful. He was a man of a few words, but his words were powerful. He was a man of a few words, but his words were powerful.

He had not enjoyed the food served him by the kidnappers, although this might have been due to his nervous condition at the time. Finally, the Touhyes were convinced that they had been mistaken in their choice of the kidnappers. They accepted $25,000 with the promise that an additional $25,000 would later be paid.

Hard Ordeal

Factor had gone through the ordeal which every kidnapped victim experiences. His family suffered much mental anguish. I remember the case of the little Robert boy who was kidnapped and finally landed in Chicago. His mother committed suicide because of the effect this kidnapping had on her.

In the meantime, prior to Factor's release, we had endeavored to do as much as possible on the case and had endeavored to cooperate with Mr. Factor, but the ransom money was paid without the knowledge of law-enforcement officials, and we were later advised that the numbers of only about four thousand nine hundred dollars of the fifty thousand dollars bills had been recovered.

This was a serious mistake. We would not now be able to trace the ransom money in the hope of finding the kidnappers by that means. Lacking the numbers of fifty thousand dollars worth of ransom bills in no small job in itself, although I do not know whether the loss of the bills caused the failure to have them listed. Certainly if the Government had been taken into their confidence at that time, all of the numbers would have been listed and the list would have been circulated as in other cases.

Look at this point played into the hands of the police and Federal men who were jointly investigating the case. I received the news by telephone. Roger Touhy himself, "Johnny" Gray, Willie Sharkey and Eddie McFadden, a Springfield labor agent familiar with some circles as "Old Father McFadden," had gone calmly to Northern Wisconsin to fish for muskellunge while the law-enforcement officials were turning handbags in a desperate attempt to find them.

Touhy, Sharkey, and Schaefer were all experienced businessmen of crime. There wasn't a youngster among them.

Unlucky Crash

The three jolly professors of gray-brown moustache and of gray-brown moustache came rattling down from the north woods in a glitzy motorcar. Willie Sharkey was driving, and he had taken two hundred too many. In Elkton, Wisconsin, he crashed the automobile into a telephone pole. It wasn't a serious accident, but a policeman arrived on the scene and took them all in the City Hall.

When he would be known, we were to pay for that broken party. The arrest was amiable in the extreme. During the questioning, McFadden avoided across the street to a glass of beer. It was about the time that the Touhy motorcar, loaded with the Touhy motorcar, was being to pay for that broken party.

ROGER TOUHY

What he saw there changed his whole attitude. These supposedly innocent sportsmen were carrying out only fishing tackle but a rifle, several pistols and many rounds of ammunition. In the language of the policeman found them handbags and the strong window-seat coat so often used to hold victims of abduction. The sewing muskellunge fishermen—their availability now had vanished—were hustled at once to a detourable jail and held on a charge of illegal possession of arms.

We were notified of the arrest, and Special Agents were ordered to Elkhart at once. Chicago police sent a detail of men. The mobsters made an attempt to deny their identity; they were confident that a "bad case" would not be proved against them. They had needed the law many years and it wasn't unusual for them to assume that they could continue to get away with their depredations. Criminals always make that mistake.

Roger Touhy, Willie Sharkey, Eddie McFadden and Glenroy Guy Schaefer were immediately brought to Chicago. There was no formal order of extradition. In some minor cases special agents and police were armed of "hacking" the prisoners.

As I recall it the criminals stated effect that we had taken the law into our own hands. I had been informed satisfactorily that the prisoners had expressed a willingness to come to Chicago without formal extradition.

Quibbling Costly

I have no concern as to the truth of this, although I believe it to be so. On the other hand, I am not a proponent of the illegal enforcement of our law, but such quibbling over infinitesimal points like these wastes a great deal of valuable time. Bad characters can be taken out of circulation by legal means if the law-enforcement officials are sufficiently persistent.

I have heard of cases where men have been and in prison on a charge of which they could not possibly have been guilty, and I have heard opinions expressed, "well, he ought to be in jail anyway." This, to my mind, is a weak point in the officers of law and order to take. It certainly is not one conducive to building a better respect for those charged with the duty of enforcing the law.

There are lines, however, when law-enforcement officials find themselves in the impossible position of having captured a dangerous and notorious criminal, who certainly should not be allowed to remain at large, and to find themselves possessed of no evidence with which to send him to prison longer. Is the criminal to be released to their prey on the public and to kill people wantonly, and remain at large until such time as the law catches up with him?

Italy Accuses Soviets Of 20 New Violations

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP)—Italy, denouncing Soviet Russia for twenty alleged new violations of the "non-aggression" agreement, today demanded an investigation to establish the facts.

Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to London, made the charges and demands in Lord Plymouth, British chairman of the committee, as it went into session this afternoon. Dates and details of the alleged Russian violations were included in the Grandi protest, and he added that the Soviets be called upon for an immediate explanation.

enforcement officials are able to complete their investigative work and collect their evidence against him. Or, will the courts and the people co-operate sufficiently to allow the prisoner to be held under a sufficient amount of bond until the case can be brought to trial properly?

Of course, it is perfectly true that with a crime and he required to remain in fifty days or detention headquarters indefinitely. This is not the type of case to which I refer. I refer to that case in which apprehension of a criminal—a known public menace—has been brought about by sheer luck or by pure persistent search.

I saw Roger Touhy in person for the first time when he was brought back in Chicago. Handcuffed and under guard, he was delivered to my office. I sat behind my desk and shot interrogations at him. Touhy wouldn't talk. I can still see him sitting in the leather chair laughing at me with a mouth full of protruding teeth.

His curly hair was neatly combed; his body was lean and hard under a sporty suit; his eyes were dreamy and disarming. Touhy wouldn't say a word. When I asked a question, he laughed. When I demanded an answer, he laughed.

Finally I said: "Well, anyway, what's your own name?" Touhy looked at me, grinned, closed his lips, and shook his head.

He had gained the impression that we were endeavoring to make him talk so that Father, an unseen listener, might identify his voice as belonging to one of the kidnappers.

Three of the jolly fishermen who bumped a telephone pole at Elkton never were at liberty again. The one identified Willie Sharkey as the man who had held a machine gun against him during the actual kidnapping episode, and he testified that Touhy's voice was the voice of the man who threatened to kill him while he was held prisoner in a basement.

For the moment, however, this section of the Touhy mob was removed from our jurisdiction. They were suspected of another kidnapping in St. Paul (the Hamm kidnapping), and they were transported thither and tried. Sharkey never faced the court. He couldn't stand the sight of prison bars, and one night he hanged himself in his cell with his necktie.

In spite of identifications by various witnesses, this gang was acquitted of the charge of the Hamm kidnapping in St. Paul, and although we entertained some disappointment as to the results of the trial of the Touhy for the crime which they had committed, but later their smiles were turned to ashes and then to tears when they were caught and killed.

The witnesses in the Hamm case had positively identified the Touhyes; they were all reputable people, but they were mistaken. This only brings to my mind the inaccuracy of identification by photo-graph.

Human frailties enter into the element of law enforcement work probably as much as anything else. These witnesses were sure, I am sure, but their inaccuracy was proven later when it was found that the Hamm kidnapping was a Harbo-Karpis gang job.

It was the work of the Harbo-Karpis gang, who also subsequently kidnapped Edward G. Bremer of St. Paul. This gang must have smiled smugly when they read of the trial of the Touhy for the crime which they had committed, but later their smiles were turned to ashes and then to tears when they were caught and killed.

It was the work of the Harbo-Karpis gang, who also subsequently kidnapped Edward G. Bremer of St. Paul. This gang must have smiled smugly when they read of the trial of the Touhy for the crime which they had committed, but later their smiles were turned to ashes and then to tears when they were caught and killed.

The witnesses in the Hamm case had positively identified the Touhyes; they were all reputable people, but they were mistaken. This only brings to my mind the inaccuracy of identification by photo-graph.

Note all these features, found on no other car in the world

VALVE-IN-HEAD STRAIGHT-8 ENGINE gives more power per unit of fuel than any other type of engine of equal displacement and compression.
AEROBATIC CARBURATOR—built on the same principle as carburetors used in aerial stunts to allow in even load of fuel.
SEALED CHASSIS keeps dirt and water from all moving parts, protects from wear and corrosion.
TORQUE-TUBE DRIVE, for steady, more stable roadability.
UNSTEEL BODY BY FISHER with solid steel floor, top and side rails.
TIPTOP HYDRAULIC BRAKES, giving safe, straight-line stops under lightest pressure.
REAR ACTION COMFORT AND SAFETY, the true gliding ride.
"HIGH OUTPUT" GENERATOR—supplies ample current for radio, heater, defroster, etc.
JUMBO LUGGAGE COMPARTMENT, with more room for travel gear than any other car of its class.
DOUBLE STABILIZATION—front and rear equal and uniform on curves.
SAFETY GLASS, standard equipment throughout at no extra cost.

WITH automobiles as with everything else, there has to be a leader of the flock.

All right then, step this way and feast your grateful eyes now on the authentic motor car bellwether for 1937!

Look at the size of it, the keen clean line of it, the streaming sweep of it, its neat fleet beauty.

It so perfectly captures in its beautifully contoured metal the dash and spirit of its buoyant action that it looks fast even when it's standing still!

Sure it's a Buick—the most stunning, sizeable, satisfying Buick that ever gladdened your startled gaze—but its stand-out good looks are literally the very least of the story.

Behind that massive radiator grille and under that gorgeous bonnet is an even bigger, smoother, valve-in-head straight-eight Buick engine, fed by an all-position aerobatic carburetor that does thrifty things with gasoline.

And control of this magnificent performer—from thrilling take-off all through the range of speeds and including safe-stop hydraulic braking—is soft and easy as a fork in pie.

You can't describe it, so why handicap language this way—come in, now, see for yourself.

"It's Buick again!"

COUZENS HEIRS FACE $18,500,000 TAX

Washington, Oct. 28 (U.S.)—Heirs to the estate of the late Senator James Couzens of Michigan probably will be compelled to pay $18,500,000 in estate taxes under the higher rates imposed in the revenue act of 1935, internal revenue experts estimate.

The estate of the "fishhook man" in Congress was estimated by experts at around $100,000,000, most of which was reported to be in government bonds. These are not exempt from "death duties."

New regulations issued by Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy T. Helvering, provide payment of $11,000,000 upon net estate of $20,000,000, and upon net estate in excess of $20,000,000 and not in excess of $30,000,000 40 per cent in addition of such excess.

At this rate, the Couzens estate will have to pay $18,500,000 in taxes on the $100,000,000 over the $20,000,000. Including the estimated tax liability to $18,500,000, experts said. Should the Couzens estate reach $100,000,000, the tax would be $22,500,000, and the government would collect 20 per cent of any amount over that mark, according to regulations issued by Commissioner Helvering.

Howard Hawks Directs 'Gunga Din' Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Los Angeles, Oct. 28 (US). The mystery of Howard Hawks' long, long absence has been partially explained. In a letter to a New York working writer, Jack McArthur and Ben Hecht on "Gunga Jin," based on the Rudyard Kipling poem which is to be produced by Edward Small as a 1937 production for IKO, Hawks left town after he and Samuel Goldwyn came to a parting of the ways over the direction of "Come and Get It" and for at least a month no one had any inkling as to his whereabouts.

"The Secret of my tasteful dinners!"

Butter beer is appetizing in both aroma and taste and is skillfully balanced for its own sake. Men like its perfect combination of tang, richness and body—just enough of each—while women praise its creamy smoothness.

A triumph in brewing, balanced to the American taste and carefully aged in seasoned tanks for the final touch of mellow quality!

Bortholdi Preferred Heroic in Conceptions

It is a fact that the world is full of heroes. There are heroes in every age and in every land. Some are famous and some are unknown. Some are men and some are women. Some are brave and some are cunning. Some are kind and some are cruel. Some are good and some are bad. Some are heroes in their own eyes and some are heroes in the eyes of others. The world is full of heroes and the world is full of heroism.

Bull of Jokes, Cartoons In Prohibition Days

In the days of prohibition, when the sale of alcohol was illegal, there was a great deal of humor and satire. People wrote jokes and cartoons about the situation. They laughed at the hypocrisy of the law and the people who enforced it. They laughed at the way in which the law was broken and the way in which the people who broke it were treated. The humor and satire of the prohibition days is a part of our history and it is a part of our culture.

Battle for Son's Custody

Leaving Middlesex Probate Court today was the mother of a six-year-old son, Henry, in the custody of Captain J. D. Meyer of Fort Hill, Okla., and his present wife, Mrs. Eulah Meyer, who testified she "loves the child like her own son." Captain Meyer claims that his former wife was an adequate parent for the boy.

A few moments before this photo was made, Henry J. Meyer, as was riding "poochie back" on his father's shoulders. Here we see the boy nestled in the arms of his mother, Mrs. Dorothy A. Football 'Fixer' Or Confessions of A Varsity Recruiter

WITH THE NEWS REELS AND NATIONAL magazines getting an early start on what is garrulously called "Badgering the Football Octopus," this bids fair to be remembered as the year of the big word. American Mercury has fired a bombastic slug by John R. Tunis. The March of Time made a pictorial symposium of schoolies, football, betting, fixers, and this week's issue of Saturday Evening Post takes its fling in a piece by Frank Wallace, called "I am a Football Fixer."

Wallace, who I know personally and respect as a competent writer, never tells me in the first person how he got his information. I suppose he got it from some of the many "fixers" who are supposed to be at work in the college football game.

As recently as the last World Series Wallace and I sat drawing pencil scribbles on the table cloth of the press beverage room, while he related the history of kids he had flushed from village bushes and sent to Notre Dame and adjacent universities.

Matter of College Conscience
THERE MUST BE SEVERAL THOUSAND college football "fixers" in the country, mostly successful business men like Wallace, who is a movie and magazine author. They like to tinker with human nature and see the raw product flourish or, sometimes, fail. As a hobby it ranges from small-town amateur "fixers" to wealthy "angels," who underwrite annual games of beefy, muscular youth and are sometimes honored with unofficial titles like "alumni athletic secretaries."

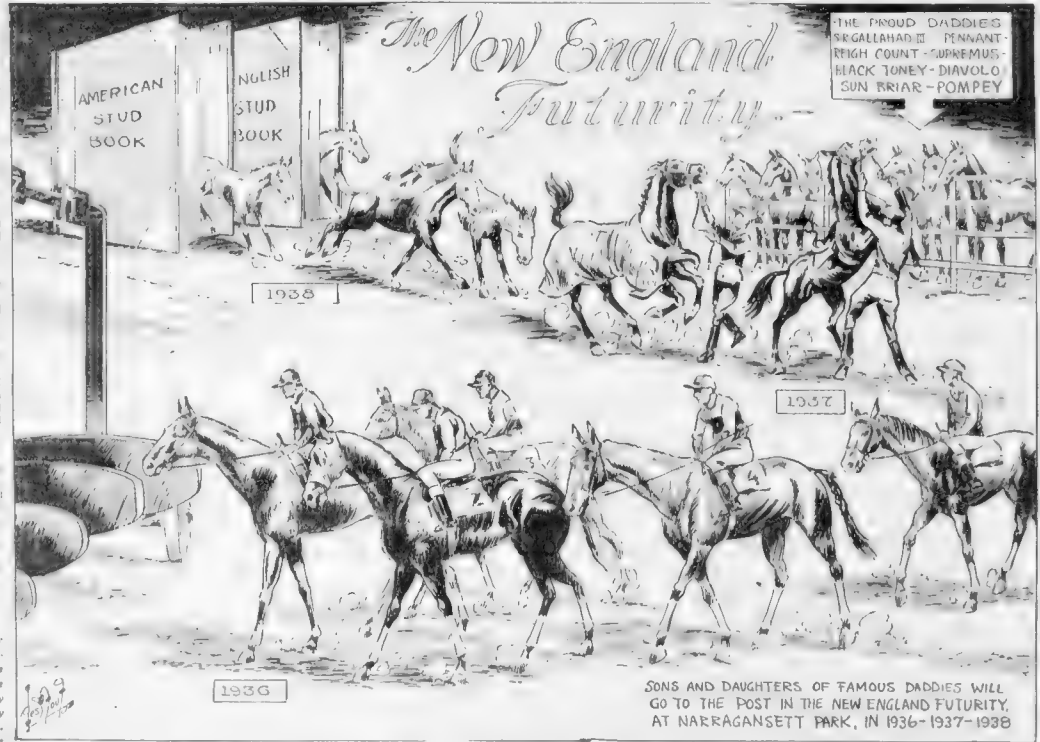

The question lies with the conscience of the college. With money the football problem turns into an easy money race. If Pitt builds a four-dollar football machine this year, the rival Fordhams, Notre Dames, Minnesotas and Southern Methodists must enlist bigger and browner recruits next year to meet the increased demand of competition at risk the college's (if school and public support, the decline of gate receipts and dwindling donations to their foundations.

A few, like Harvard, adhere to the scrupulous letter of amateurism shunning their candle light in a naughty world. But Harvard is a rare bird.

Schoolboy Stars Expect More
LAST SUMMER A FRIEND led a muscular youngster into this office. The boy had graduated from a nearby school with cum laude football honors and passable college entrance credits. Could I recommend him to a college offering "increased opportunities of life"? I did. Last Monday a letter arrived from that college's graduate manager saying, "I regret to say that young man whom you recommended, has left college because our facilities for assistance did not match those of University, where he is now enrolled."

As a "fixer" I am a flop and I will "fix" no more youths with shining, morning faces and big bull shoulders and honey bulges in their pants. Because the modern schoolboy here has learned to hustle for his education, he is no longer satisfied with tuition, a hall room and a lunch job for food. He wants spending money, a department store credit and summer vacation with pay. And sometimes gets it. A football game in short. And Wallace related, as he repeats in his article, the incredible story of the halfback who married in his sophomore year, was divorced as a junior and demanded the amount of his alimony from the college A. A.

"Hokey," said I. "Honest," said he, naming names, dates and data.
The guy who fixed the halfback told him.
"That there" a well known fixer phoned in the following day to say he was coming to town.

WILSON PICKS FIVE WINNERS

Continuing where he left off at Rockingham, Dave Wilson, Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser ace horse handicapper, selected five winners out of the eight race Narragansett card yesterday.
The shift from the New Hampshire oval to the 'Gansett strip failed to handicap the choices of New England's ace selector.
Lena J, chestnut filly owned by A. J. Patterson, romped home in the third race to tune of $6.20 to start the Wilson parade of winners.
Bill Farnsworth made it two wins when he grabbed the "Gay Desperado Handicap," the feature race on the card. The brown gelding, totting 120 pounds, paid $4.60 straight.
Skipton at $4.60, Hoosier's Pride at $8.70 and Bounding Count at $5.60, completed the Wilson sweep when they won the sixth, seventh and eighth races respectively.
Dave was the leading selector at "Rock" and promises to be the same at the O'Hare playground.
Horse racing can't be beat but if you want the nearest thing to it, play Wilson. Wilson's selections and graded handicaps are found daily in the Boston American.
